FBT Project Finance Advisors Welcomes Kevin Malof as Vice President

February 10, 2016 (Columbus, OH) – Kevin K. Malof, attorney at Frost Brown Todd in West Chester, Ohio, has joined FBT Project Finance Advisors LLC as vice president. He joins David A. Rogers and Jason L. George in assisting government entities and borrowers in designing ideal financing solutions for projects in the areas of infrastructure, economic development and redevelopment, real estate, health care and public-private partnerships.

Malof has 15 years of experience serving both public and private sector clients in the broad areas of corporate/transactional law, real estate law and construction law and spent 10 years in the banking industry before practicing law. He has represented municipalities, townships and schools on a wide range of legal matters impacting the decisions of local officials and administrators. He serves on numerous boards and commissions, among them the Clermont County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors and the Clermont County Workforce Readiness Commission.

About FBT Project Finance Advisors LLC

FBT Project Finance Advisors is an Independent Registered Municipal Advisor (IRMA) and a subsidiary of the law firm Frost Brown Todd LLC. Its team of advisors provides general advisory services, economic development advisory services and bond transaction-specific services to local government entities. Using traditional and innovative techniques, they create structured financing solutions, including components such as tax credits and incentives, various types of bonds, and federal and state guarantees and grants. They also focus on securitizations, public-private partnership (P3) transactions, and on advising municipalities and borrowers on derivative structures.
