

The Basics of Revolving Loan Funds

= A self-replenishing pool of money utilizing interest and principal payments from old loans to issue new loans ...

A simple example of a revolving loan fund for an individual small business owner is a line of credit they may receive from a bank - it is replenished as the borrower pays back any money drawn down.

A line of credit from a bank is intended to pay for short term working capital needs for a business subject to seasonal sales.

Growth Rates of Non-Employer and Employer Firms (2004-2014, Indexed to 2004)

Note: Author's calculations of U.S. Census Bureau Business Dynamics Statistics data.

64% of employer firms faced financial challenges in the prior 12 months. More than two-thirds addressed these challenges by using the owners' personal funds.

The 2018 survey finds that 43% of employer firms applied for financing in the prior 12 months.

To gauge funding success and shortfalls, we combine applicants' financing outcomes and nonapplicants' reasons for not applying. There are two types of firms that had their funding needs met:

- 1) Applicant firms that received the full amount of financing sought; and
- 2) Nonapplicant firms that did not apply for financing because they already had sufficient financing.

The remaining firms may or may not have unmet funding needs. When applicant firms did not obtain the full amount of funding sought, we consider them to have a financing shortfall. When nonapplicant firms did not report they had sufficient financing, we consider them to have potentially unmet funding needs.

The share of applicants who sought loans, lines of credit, or cash advances from online lenders has grown markedly.

Medium/high credit risk applicants were more likely than low credit risk applicants to apply to online lenders.

How does a Revolving Loan Fund (RLF) Work?

Reserve funds for losses

LOANS to small businesses

Funds to be revolved

PRINCIPAL & INTEREST PAYMENTS

Funds for Admin

How self-replenishing the fund will be, depends on how much the seed funds “cost” the RLF.

Funds can be provided via:

- Grants
- Low interest loans (like program related investments or impact investments)
- Lines of credit
- Other sources

What does a Revolving Loan Fund Need?

- FUNDS to lend out
- A REASON to lend the funds
- Someone (one or more) to market the program, manage applications, prepare credit write-ups, facilitate approvals, coordinate fundings, receive payments, do servicing actions, and, most likely, liquidate loans
- A credit policy / servicing policy / liquidation policy to guide the RLF

How much should you lend out your revolving loan funds for?

(According to the FDIC quarterly report issued 09/05/19, the net interest margin for banks remains steady at 3.39%)

- How much did the funds cost?
- How much does it cost you to operate and administer the fund?
- How much do you anticipate losing from the fund each year?

Why does your Revolving Loan Fund Exist?

What is your mission?
What is your vision?
What are your values?
